THE CRY OF THE SMOTHERED.

By Clarence Ousley.

Again are the days of the Mighty—they spring to the stirrup of war. The firmament reddens; the thunder of hoofbeats is heard from afar. In vain is my preaching and patience—the war dogs have scented the lair.

And woe to the nations and races that palter and prattle in prayer.

Now, Prudence take counsel of Prescience, and Power cohabit with Love.

The Smothered beseech us; their still small voice is heard from above:

"We speak from the lore of the Infinite; eons are days in our sight; Eternity opens before us, and darkness dissolves into light.

We cry to the arms of the loving; we call from the loins of the strong; Remember the joy of your living; do not the unspendable wrong!

The wrong that is treason to manhood, the wrong that is womanhood's blush.

The wrong that would smother the burning in passion's unmothering hush!

From Eden to Paradise ever the duty and glory are one.

And, 'Go multiply and replenish' is law to the distantest son;

'Tis sacred to sentiment and senseless, to all except masterful man.

The rebel alone of creation who thwarts the adorable plan—

The plan that is proved by its fruitage, whatever you think of its God;

The plan that grows beauty from dunghills and fashions a soul from a clod.

And think you no penalty threatens? No wage will be paid for the sin?

That Nature is bankrupt and spent ere vaster endeavors begin?

The life that denies is bedizened; its heart is diseased at the core.

And, how it may revel and riot, it suffers and cankers the more;

It comes at the last to the palsy, the rheum and wither of years.

Unloving and loveless and childless, alone with its whining and tears;

And, how it may serve with its giving of substance or effort of worth.

The curse of the fig tree shall fall on the barren that cumber the earth.

The twain that is one and is virile—the twain that is one must be more.

Or love is the lie to a mistress and law is the lock on the door.

The Future calls out to the Present: Ye strong ones, take heed and be true!

Whereby unto you it was given thereby be it given by you.

In sacrifice only is glory; the glitter of life is but dross;

Nor loving nor praying will matter; the test is in bearing the cross.

The tribe that is dalliant must perish or sooner be trampled to earth

By rulers and races more faithful who scorn to dishonor their birth.

For Nature is not a respecter of persons or places or time.

But, set in her purpose eternal, will raise up new glories from crime."

BIOGRAPHY.

Sketch of the Late W. L. Edge, Who Died at Port Arthur.

The following biographical sketch of the late W. L. Edge, who died recently at Port Arthur, an account of which appeared in these columns at the time, was furnished the Eagle by his son, Monroe Edge of Beaumont:

Warren Lee Edge was born in Chambers County, Ala., Dec. 15, 1846. Moved with his father's family to Sumpter (now Schley) County, Ga., when 3 years old and was reared in Schley County, near Ellaville, Ga.

On Jan. 1, 1863, he went to Hanover County, Va., and served in Company A, Colonel A. S. Cutts Battalion of Artillery, for three months, relieving his older brother, W. H. H. Edge. In January, 1864, he joined Company F, Third Georgia Reserves at Columbus, Ga., being elected first sergeant when the company was organized. He went from Columbus to Macon, Ga., where his regiment was organized about March 1, 1864. He was appointed ordnance sergeant when the regiment was organized. The regiment was sent to guard the Andersonville prison until September, 1864, and from Andersonville the regiment went to Camp Lawton to guard another prison, at which place they stayed until Dec. 1, 1864.

The regiment was sent to Augusta, Ga., Dec. 1, and on Dec. 3 was ordered to Savannah by way of Charleston, but was stopped at Coosahatchee and the battle of Coosahatchee was fought on Dec. 4. On Dec. 6 the battle of Pocotaligo was fought. Both battles were in the rice farms of South Carolina between Charleston and Savannah. On Jan. 1, 1865, an election was held to fill a vacancy caused by the death of First Lieutenant Brooks and W. L. Edge was elected to that place. On April 5 the regiment was ordered to Columbus, Ga., and on the 16th of April was fought the battle of Garrettsville, across the Chatahochee River from Columbus, near the birthplace of W. L. Edge. This was the last battle engaged in by the regiment, as the war closed a few days later.

On Jan. 18, 1866, he married Miss Jane Harriet Cloud near Oglethorpe, Ga., and in October, 1866, left Schley County, Ga., by private conveyance for Texas, accompanied by his wife and brothers-in-law, J. W. Cloud and his bride and Joe Cloud.

The party reached Brazos County, Texas, Dec. 1, 1866, about fifty years ago. His wife died Oct. 9, 1908, leaving the following children: Geo. P. Edge, W. H. Edge, Mrs. W. G. Drummond and J. S. Edge of Kurten, Tex.; Mrs. E. T. Benbow and Miss Della Edge of Bryan, Tex.; Mrs. H. O. Drummond of View, Tex., and Monroe Edge of Beaumont, Tex.

On Aug. 5, 1911, he married Mrs. Etta Martin of Chickasha, Ok., who died on the 15th of October, 1911. Four years ago he married Mrs. Cora Little of Port Arthur, Tex., and has since then made his home at Port Arthur, Tex., where he died Feb. 23, at 10 p. m. He served about twenty years as county commissioner of Precinct No. 3 of Brazos County and for ten years held the office of both commissioner and justice of the peace of his precinct. He was for a number of years president of the Farmers' Educational and Co-operative Association of Brazos County. In the last few years he has been an active worker in the Baptist Church at Port Arthur, of which he was a devout member. Mr. Edge is survived by the above mentioned children and his wife at Port Arthur, also his brother, Dr. John S. Edge of Magnolia, Tex., and a sister, Mrs. Floyd Kent of Americus, Ga.

SOME NARROW ESCAPES.

"One bullet went clean through my pocket, struck my notebook and stayed there. I have it still. It was my first hit, and so I have kept it as a souvenir." Thus wrote an officer in the English army from Flanders some time ago, and the incident is typical of many occasions when men have been saved from death or disablement by some object they were carrying about their person.

Not long ago a private in the Fourth East Yorkshire Regiment was saved from death by a cigarette case which he was carrying in a pocket over his heart. The missile lodged in the inner cover of the case. The cigarette was badly damaged, but no other harm was done. A Lancashire soldier was also saved by a cigarette case and a penny in his breast pocket.

Bishop Taylor Smith, speaking at the Harrow School, told how a captain in the Coldstream was wounded by a shell. When he was examined the doctors found a Bible in his hip pocket. The piece of shell had struck the Bible and gone through the pages. Had it not been for the Bible the officer's spine would have been shattered. Curiously enough, the missile had stopped at the ninety-first Psalm, and the officer's father, who had given him the Bible, had written a verse from that Psalm on the flyleaf.

Shaving soap, tobacco pouches, letter cases and books of all descriptions have saved the lives of many soldiers, but the most extraordinary life-saver was a mouth organ which was smashed to pieces by a bullet as it rested in the left breast pocket of Private Kelghley, a Canadian. It was found afterward that the mouth organ bore the legend, "Made in Germany."
